IIA: Biographical Essay

Amos Tuck French [1863-1941] was the descendent of old New Hampshire families, the Frenches, Tucks and Richardsons. His parents, wealthy financier, Francis

Ormond French, and Ellen Tuck French, raised him in privileged society in New York City and Newport RI (where his mother maintained a large home, "Harborview"). He graduated from Harvard in 1885, where he was also a member of the elite Porcellian Club, and followed his father into banking and finance. His Wall Street career was relatively short – he retired as president of Manhattan Trust Co in 1907, though he remained on the Board of that institution as well as of several Railroad companies. He was a member of many New York and Newport clubs (Knickerbocker, Harvard Union, Turf and Field, etc) and, especially before World War I, moved in social circles that devoted much time to activities such as attendance at balls and the opera, polo playing, yacht and crew racing, race horse breeding, seasonal hunting at various camps and lodges.

He traveled to Europe almost annually from about 1900 on to visit his sister, Elizabeth "Bessie" French Eaton (Lady Cheylesmore), who had married into the English aristocracy and lived in several residences in London and elsewhere in England and Scotland. The primary destinations on his visits, however, were the homes of his uncle, Edward Tuck, and his wife, Julia, who lived in Paris and Cannes or Monte Carlo. Edward Tuck was a childless wealthy financier and French seems to have acted as his US agent and representative, traveling at Tuck's behest to inspect the Great Northern Railroad with James J Hill, for example. Tuck probably managed his nephew's career, at least in part, for French later became a director of Hill's railroad and its successor corporations, and some of Tuck's letters contain advice about handling various business and investment situations.

Amos Tuck French married Pauline "Lena" LeRoy [1864-1928] in Newport RI in 1885 and they had six children over the next fifteen years. French built a large home in Tuxedo Park NY called "Tucks Eden" and commuted to Wall Street from there. Perhaps because she was busy with household responsibilities, Pauline does not seem to have participated in the strenuous social life led by her husband – almost all the invitations to balls, dinners, opera etc are directed to him alone. She also did not accompany him to Europe and spent much of her time living with her mother in Newport RI, a place Amos came to dislike. They divorced in 1914 and he married the sister of the Governor of Rhode Island, Martha "Mattie" Beeckman.

In the early 1900s, French became interested in his family's New Hampshire origins and, with his mother's help, began to purchase land and houses in Chester NH. His sister, Ellen "Elsie" French Vanderbilt joined him in this endeavor after her divorce from Alfred Vanderbilt and eventually they owned adjacent properties with three or more dwellings which they used as summer homes.

After serving during World War One by running a Red Cross rest station in Tours, France, French and his wife spent long periods of time in the 1920s and 30s in Europe, usually with Edward Tuck but also traveling and visiting extensively. They gradually spent less and less time at their Tuxedo Park home, choosing instead to live at their second home, "Journeys End", in Chester NH, where Amos Tuck French died.

III: SCOPE NOTE

This is a collection of family papers, primarily Amos Tuck French's letters to and from friends and family between 1880 and 1940. There is a small amount of earlier material from c. 1820-1880: letters of his grandfather, Benjamin B. French [all except one folder of 1834 correspondence to his wife and sister are photocopies, originals in the Library of Congress] and his father, Francis O. French.

The Amos Tuck French letters and memorabilia document the social activities (balls, theater, club dinners, polo matches, crew and yacht races, hunting trips, foreign and domestic travel, etc) of a highly privileged and wealthy group of New York and Newport RI men (and, to a much lesser extent, their wives, sisters and daughters) and French's own family. Most of French's friends were graduates of Harvard and many were also members of the exclusive Porcellian Club at that university. Especially before 1920, the collection contains many invitations, menus (often with seating charts) and other printed matter (filed under "memorabilia") documenting this social milieu.

Folder entries [see detailed box lists below] for letters from friends contain alphabetical lists of French's correspondents, which include such people as John Jacob Astor, various members of the Havemeyer family, Pierre Lorillard, J.P. Morgan, Endicott Peabody, Stanford White, Owen Wister and many other men prominent in New York and Newport RI business and social circles. Letters from French's cousin, Daniel Chester French, are in separate folders under his name.

World War I is discussed in many letters of the period, especially those from French's sister, Elizabeth "Bessie" French Eaton, Lady Cheylesmore, who lived in England and had sons at the front. In general, her letters reveal much about life of the English aristocracy in the late nineteenth and early twentieth century. French and his second wife were in France in the closing years of the war, running a Soldiers Club for the Red Cross in Tours.

French's uncle, Edward Tuck, and his wife Julia lived in Paris and Cannes or Monte Carlo for the period covered by this collection. Amos Tuck French was his uncle's American business contact, and letters from Edward Tuck often offer investment and business advice and discuss U.S. politics insofar as they affect financial policy. Tuck also commented freely on the doings of other family members and on the expatriate American community in France and England. There is very little correspondence between Tuck and his nephew about Edward Tuck's founding and endowing The Tuck School at Dartmouth College or his donation for the construction of the building in Concord NH that houses The New Hampshire Historical Society's library.

Early in the twentieth century, French rediscovered his family's roots in Chester NH and thereafter he and other family members purchased property in the town. Over a period of years between approximately 1903 and 1914 he and his sister Ellen "Elsie" French Vanderbilt (later FitzSimons) purchased and renovated at least three early 19th century homes there which they used as second and summer residences. Eventually, Amos Tuck French retired to one of them and died in Chester. There are some tax returns, occasional photographs and many passing references to these dwellings but no extensive documentation of them.

French and/or other family members have censored and sanitized the letters to obscure what they thought were private or shameful matters. Some letters have holes cut in them or entire pages missing, and correspondence from or about family members whose behavior was thought unacceptable is often missing entirely. Thus, French's son Edward ("Ned"), who died in 1919 and had been misbehaving for several years before, is undocumented after about 1912. Letters about the elopement of his daughter Julia with the chauffeur in 1911 are absent, and there is little or nothing about the divorces and remarriages of either French himself or of his children. French did, however, keep occasional newspaper clippings about these events; they are filed under "memorabilia" in the relevant year.

Another major gap in the collection is letters that would provide information about the thoughts and activities of the women of the family and of French's children. French did save letters from his mother, Ellen Tuck French [1838-1915], who spent the last decades of her life in England, and some from his sisters, Elizabeth Lady Cheylesmore, and Ellen Vanderbilt FitzSimons, but retained only scattered pieces of correspondence from his wives, daughters and adult sons. Stuyvesant, his second son, who followed him to Harvard and became an attorney, seems to have been the only child of whom French wholly approved – accordingly, more of his correspondence was kept than that of any other child.

IV: ARRANGEMENT OF THE COLLECTION

IVA: A note on arrangement of papers:

Amos Tuck French pasted his correspondence into a long series of scrapbooks. These were kept roughly chronologically but in an unclear organizational scheme with overlapping years in various different volumes. The scrapbooks have been disassembled and the papers arranged in chronological order, then alphabetically by author of the letter within each year.

When a woman married or remarried, her correspondence is filed under her married name. Changes in these names are noted when they occur and are listed below. Also see the list of family members above, which contains years of divorces and remarriages, and the time line of French's life which can be used as a rough index to the collection.

Within each year, French's correspondence has been separated into incoming and outgoing folders and personal and social letters. On the front of each folder of incoming personal letters is an alphabetical list of the correspondents. These also appear in the box lists. The "social" correspondence consists of invitations, thank-you notes and letters with similar formulaic content; the names of these writers have not been listed

Printed matter kept by French (menus, newspaper clippings, etc) are called “memorabilia” and filed after his correspondence.

Photographs are filed in the year in which they were taken. Group images and those of French, his spouse(s) and friends are filed under his name. Single images are filed under the name of the subject.

The original Scrapbooks have been discarded except for examples in Boxes 3 and 10. French’s marginal comments in the scrapbooks have either been clipped to the relevant letter or, more often, transcribed in pencil on the letter. French also identified the writers of his correspondence and this information has been penciled onto the letters. Several scrapbooks that contained no correspondence but were full of newspaper clippings about the progress of World War One have been discarded without copying any of the content.

French wrote and privately published several books and copies of some of them are found in the collection, usually in manuscript or typescript form. These include transcriptions of the diary and letters of his ancestor, Benjamin B. French; letters of a friend, Winthrop Chanler [in bound, printed version]; an autobiographical account of the social scene in New York City business circles in the late nineteenth and early twentieth century (“A Banker off His Beat”) and histories of New Hampshire and the town of Chester. Not found here are copies of other books he wrote, one about polo at Harvard and another about Exeter NH.

The genealogical information in the collection was gathered and arranged by an unknown person [perhaps French’s son, Stuyvesant LeRoy French] with occasional notes, comments and additions in another hand; there is also some correspondence with professional researchers. There are two types of files: by first name only [the assumption is that the surname is French in all cases] and by descendents [arranged in numbered groups I-XI, with I and III missing]. These files are arranged as found.

IVB: Dates of Name Changes (women are filed under married name):

- 1892 ATF’s sister Elizabeth “Bessie” becomes Eaton
